This document contains the finalized written content for Lesson 3 and Lesson 4. The wording has been cleaned up and expanded so the lessons are easier to follow, more detailed, and more useful for building the final software experience.

Lesson 3 - Rules and Regulations

Lesson Objective	Lesson Description
Help users understand the most important and commonly misunderstood soccer rules so they can follow real matches with confidence.	This lesson focuses on rules that are often confusing for beginners when watching soccer. Instead of basic rules, it explains how key decisions are made during a match, especially in situations that stop play or change the outcome of the game. The lesson focuses on the offside rule, how fouls are identified and punished, and what happens when matches are tied in knockout stages.

Learning Content

Section 1: Offside Rule

The offside rule is one of the most misunderstood parts of soccer. A player is considered offside if they are closer to the opponent's goal than the defenders at the moment the ball is passed to them.

This rule exists to prevent players from gaining an unfair advantage by standing near the goal and waiting for an easy pass.

However, being in an offside position does not automatically mean a player is offside. The timing of the pass is what matters most.

- They are on their own half of the field
- They are level with the last defender
- The ball is passed before they move ahead

In real matches, offside decisions can be extremely close and are sometimes reviewed using video technology to ensure accuracy.

Section 2: Fouls and Penalties

A foul occurs when a player breaks the rules in a physical or unsafe way.

- Tripping an opponent
- Pushing or holding
- Tackling in a dangerous way

Referees decide whether a foul has occurred based on the level of contact and the nature of the challenge.

The consequence of a foul depends on where it happens. If the foul takes place outside the penalty area, the opposing team is awarded a free kick. If the foul takes place inside the penalty area, the opposing team is awarded a penalty kick.

Penalty kicks are one of the most important moments in a match because they give a very high chance of scoring.

Some fouls may also result in disciplinary action. A yellow card is a warning, while a red card removes the player from the game.

Section 3: Extra Time and Penalty Shootouts

In some matches, especially knockout rounds, a winner must be decided.

If the score is tied at the end of regular time, the match goes into extra time, which is made up of two additional halves. If the score is still tied after extra time, the match is decided by a penalty shootout.

During a penalty shootout, each team takes turns shooting. Players attempt to score one-on-one against the goalkeeper, and the team with the most successful shots wins.

Penalty shootouts are often high-pressure situations and can decide major tournaments.
